Can you predict the successful teams at World Cup 2010 in South Africa?

Choose the teams that you think will go through from each of the groups and then predict the winners of every match all the way to the final. Every team that you successfully choose to go past the group stage wins you points. The further into the competition they go, the more points you earn. The person who gains the most points from the most accurate set of predictions will win. Entry Fee just £2. In the event of a draw, the winner will be decided by the tie-break question. All profits from this competition go to Keyworth United FC. The organisers take no costs or expenses from the prize fund.

Study the groups A – H below and choose who you think will come first and second in each group. Enter these teams into each of the spaces on the form overleaf. For each match you have created, predict who you think will win and put their name forward into the adjacent space in the quarter finals. Do the same for these quarter final matches and also for the semi finals and then the final. Write the name of the team you think will win the final in the winner's box on the form and then fill in the tie-break question. "How many goals do you think will be scored altogether in all the World Cup matches?" (64 games in total, but do not include any penalty shoot-out goals)

Either post this form with your £2 entry fee (Cheques to Keyworth United FC) to World Cup Competition, % 1 Rose Grove, Keyworth, Nottingham, NG12 5HE

Or hand this form in with your £2 at Platt Lane clubhouse or shops in Keyworth displaying the World Cup Competition sign

Or enter online for £2.50 at www.worldcupcompetition.co.uk

Competition Point Scoring System

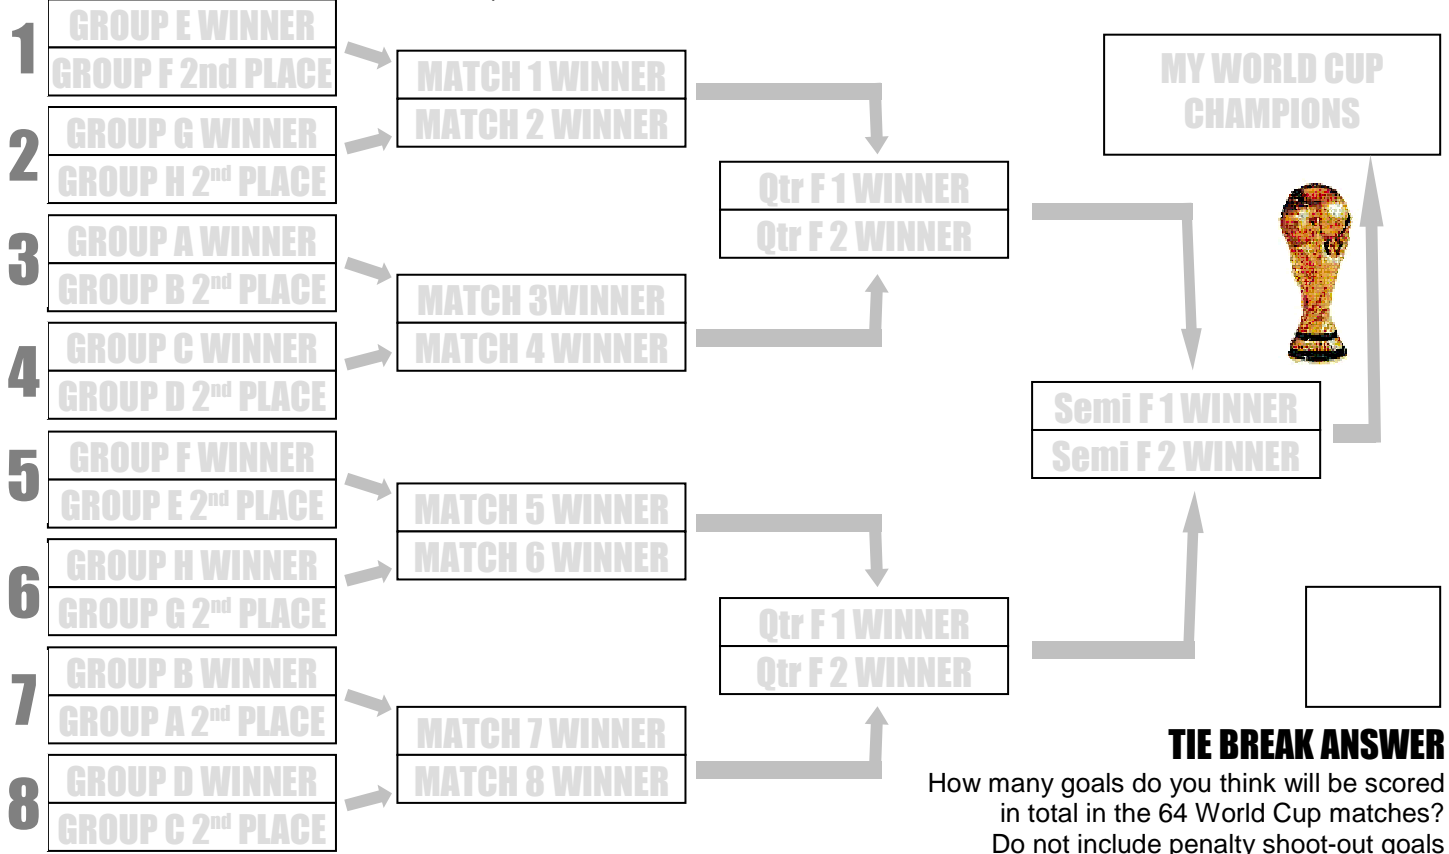

Every team you choose correctly as the top two in the groups earns 5 points. Quarter Final predictions earn 10 points, Semi Final predictions earn 15 points, Final predictions earn 20 points. Correct prediction of the final winner earns a further 25 points. No points are awarded for the 3rd place play off. In this way, if a person correctly predicts the whole tournament from Round 2 onwards, they could gain a maximum score of 285 points.
